CAMPUS BOMB THREAT HOAXES

Cops arrest minor

ANGELES CITY – Police have apprehended a minor suspected of having posted online bomb threats against various campuses here and in other towns of Pampanga.

With his parents, the suspect was brought on Oct. 13 to the Office of the Mayor for a case conference with Mayor Carmelo “Jon” Lazatin II, city police director Col. Joselito Villarosa, Jr., social workers from the city social welfare and development office, and a representative from the Public Attorney’s Office.

Under Presidential Decree No. 1727, anyone who willfully makes a bomb threat or disseminates false information about bombs via any medium, including social media, faces imprisonment of up to five years, a fine of up to ₱40,000, or both, with no bail.

Villarosa, said that guardians may also bear responsibility if proven they neglected their child’s well-being or failed to exercise proper supervision. This, he noted, underscores the principle that there are repercussions for every action and that accountability extends to families responsible for safeguarding youth.

Mayor Lazatin reminded the public that online posts and comments about threats are taken seriously and carry potential legal consequences. “This accomplishment highlights the ability of law enforcement to trace online communications and hold offenders accountable, regardless of age, while also emphasizing rehabilitation and restorative processes for juveniles,” the mayor noted. Angeles CIO

NBI nabs SHS student

ANGELES CITY – A 21-year-old senior high school student has been arrested by the National Bureau of Investigation-Region 3 as the prime suspect behind the bomb threat at the F.G. Nepomuceno Memorial High School here.

The NBI-3 said suspect Sheila Gonzales used a dummy Facebook account with the name “Miles Manunulat” in sending bomb threat to the school which turned out to be a hoax.

It can be recalled that on Oct. 9, Pampanga 1st District Rep. Carmelo “Pogi” Lazatin, Jr. sought the assistance of NBI in identifying the perpetrators behind the false bomb threats targeting schools in the First District.

Lazatin congratulated the NBI-3 headed by Atty. Renoir Baldovino for a “job well done.”

This, even as he warned other perpetrators of the bomb threat hoaxes to immediately stop their activity. “With NBI onboard, you will be arrested.”

The NBI was assisted by Pandan Barangay Captain Cors Alejandrino and staff in arresting Gonzales.

CITY OF SAN FERNANDO — The San Fernando Electric Light and Power Company (Sfelapco) has announced that it will soon begin removing billboards, streamers, and posters attached to electric posts in its service area of Floridablanca and this city.

Sfelapco spokesperson Atty. Cathy Diaz said the move is part of the company’s safety measures to protect electrical lines and prevent accidents. She explained that strong winds can blow away tarpaulins or streamers, which may cause short circuits, power interruptions, or even fires.

Diaz added that unregulated advertising materials also obstruct road visibility and worsen traffic

Fund resilience, not disasters

AS THE climate crisis accelerates, disasters are multiplying and amplifying – devastating lives and livelihoods, erasing decades of development gains in an instant. The cost to the global economy is staggering: an estimated $2 trillion every year, when indirect costs are taken into account.

Yet funding to reduce repercussions remains dangerously low. Just 2% of development assistance and often less than 1% of government budgets are dedicated to disaster risk reduction. That's not just a gap – it is a miscalculation. Every dollar invested in resilient infrastructure in developing countries saves $4 when disasters strike.

The theme of this year's International Day for Disaster Risk Reduction reminds us of the imperative to fund resilience. Governments and donors must scale-up investments in disaster risk reduction. The public and private sectors must integrate risk into every decision – to reduce exposure and vulnerability to hazards. And resilience must be embedded into the foundations of development.

On this day, let's commit to meet surging risk with a surge in funds, and build a safer and more equitable future for all.

(UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres' message on the International Day for Disaster Risk Reduction, 13 Oct. 2025)

Class suspensions show government neglect

PERO PARA sa amin at sa mga guro, influenza man yan o lindol, ang “go-to solution” na naman ng gobyerno ay suspension ng classes—indikasyon ito ng kapabayaan niya sa sektor ng edukasyon.

Whether it's a health crisis or disaster preparedness, the government's default response remains the same: suspend classes. This band-aid approach does nothing to address the systemic problems that make our schools vulnerable in the first place.

We need long-term solutions: Adequate budget for additional climate-resilient classrooms that can withstand earthquakes and provide proper ventilation against disease transmission; more teachers and personnel to achieve proper class sizes; functional laboratories and health personnel in every school.

At syempre, tanggalin na lahat ng pork barrel sa 2026 budget at ilipat ito sa edukasyon.

Our students and teachers deserve schools that are safe, healthy, and prepared—not just reactive suspensions that highlight government failure.

Lumublob sa maputik na tubig para luminis

“KUNG TAYO man ay maging taksil, mananatili pa rin siyang tapat. Sapagkat hindi niya maikakaila ang kanyang sarili.” Ito po ang mabuting balita na ibig ko sanang pagnilayan natin, ngayong umaga. Mga salitang makapagbibigay sa atin ng lakas ng loob na lumapit at humingi ng tawad sa Diyos sa kabila ng ating mga pagkukulang at pagkakasala, dahil likas sa Diyos ang manatiling tapat at maging mapagpatawad. At iyon din kasi ang ibig niyang matutunan natin sa kanya: ang maging tapat, dahil nilikha niya tayong kalarawan niya, at mga anak ang turing niya sa atin.

Minsan may nagtanong sa akin tungkol sa ating unang pagbasa. Bakit daw nag-uwi ng lupa galing sa Israel si Naaman sa kanyang bayan sa Syria matapos na siya ay gumaling? Ano daw ba ang ibig sabihin noon? Balikan natin ang kuwento. Binabayaran sana ni Naaman ng ginto ang propetang Eliseo matapos na maglublob siya sa maputik na ilog ng Jordan, na ayaw niya talagang gawin noong una. Para kasing nasaktan ang pride niya dahil hindi siya binigyan ng importansya ng propeta kahit meron siyang endorsement mula sa hari at mataas na opisyal na militar siya ng bayan ng Syria. Biro nyo nagpaabot lang ang propeta sa kanya ng salita: na lumublob nang makapitong beses sa maputik na tubig ng ilog Jordan kung ibig niya gumaling. Dahil sa galit, uuwi na sana ang heneral. Mabuti na lang at napigilan siya at naimulat ng kanyang alipin na dalagitang Israelita: “Ano po ba ang mawawala sa inyo kung sumunod kayo at magpakumbaba?” Nang lumamig ang ulo ng heneral, sumunod nga siya. Ginawa niya ang utos ng propeta at aba—gumaling siya! Luminis ang balat niya!

Balik tayo sa tanong: bakit nag-uwi siya ng lupa matapos na tanggihan ng propeta ang alok niyang gantimpalang ginto? Ang lupa ay simbolo ng pagpapakumbaba—sino nga ba tayo para magmalaki, e galing lang tayo sa lupa at babalik din sa lupa?

Mga kapatid, mga kapwa Pilipino. Ito po ang dahilan kung bakit bilang presidente ng CBCP, naglabas ako ng isang pambansang panawagan na tayong lahat ay manalangin, magpakumbaba at magsisi sa mga panahong ito ng napakaraming kalamidad at trahedyang nangyayari sa ating bayan. Gumawa tayo ng simbolikong paglulublob sa maputik na tubig ng korupsiyon na lumulunod sa ating lipunan. Kung ibig nating luminis na muli at gumaling ang ating bayan sa ketong ng katiwalian. Magpakumbaba tayong lahat.

Alam nyo, minsan may isang matandang ale na lumapit sa akin para humingi ng payo. Bakit daw kaya sunod-sunod ang pagdapo ng mga kamalasan sa buhay niya? Ang pinakahuling kamalasan na tinuturing niya ay noong pinatay ang apo niyang lalaki na graduating na sana sa college at pinaghirapan niyang paaralin. Tinanong ko siya, “Bat nyo naman naisip na minamalas kayo?” Sabi niya, “Kasi parang pinaparusahan ako ng Diyos.” Dahil nakita kong mabigat ang kalooban niya at humihingi siya ng tulong na makalag ang tanikalang gumagapos sa konsensya niya, binanggit ko sa kanya ang tatlong sangkap ng pakikipagkasundo sa Diyos: pag-amin, pagsisisi at pagbabayad-puri.

Mabilis na sinabi ng ale, “Inaamin ko po na noong una, kapag nakakarinig ako ng mga adik na tinotokhang at pinapatay nang kasagsagan pa ng giyera sa droga, wala akong pakialam. Tuwang-tuwa pa nga ako dahil, inisip ko na tama lang na mabawasan ang mga salot sa lipunan. Minsan nga nakita ko talaga iyung kapitbahay namin, hindi naman nanlaban noong kinaladkad sa kalsada, binaril talaga siya kahit nagmamakaawa. Pero tumahimik ako, hindi ako tumestigo. Kaya nga siguro ganoon din hinayaan ng Diyos na mangyari sa apo ko. Naisip ko, “Hindi kaya pinalalasap sa akin ng Panginoon ang naranasan ng kapitbahay namin?”

Sabi ko sa kanya: “Pwede ninyong tingnan bilang parusa. Pero pwede rin ninyong tingnan bilang paraan ng pagmumulat ng Diyos sa inyo dahil mahal niya kayo.” Naghahagulgol siya.

Minsan katulad ng ale, kapag sunod-sunod ang pagdapo sa atin ng trahedyang at kalamidad, parang natutukso rin tayong mag-isip na minamalas tayo o pinaparusahan tayo, o galit sa atin ang Diyos. Sabi ni Santo Tomas de Aquino, minsan hinahayaan ng Diyos na mangyari sa atin ang isang bagay na masama kung may idudulot ito na mas higit pang kabutihan. Katulad ng sampung ketongin sa ating ebanghelyo. Kaya siguro naitanong ni Hesus nang bumalik ang isa – “Di ba sampu ang gumaling? Nasaan ang siyam?” Kasi noong maysakit pa sila ng ketong, sama-sama sila kahit magkakaiba sila ng mga paniniwala: ang siyam ay Hudyo at ang isa ay Samaritano. Totoo, hindi ba, sa gitna ng kalamidad, nakakalimutan natin ang ating mga hidwaan. Hindi Katoliko, Protestante, Iglesia o Muslim; hindi pula o berde, pink o dilawan sa pulitika ang nakikita mo, kundi kapwa tao. Kaya kung minsan maituturing ding parang blessing ang mga kalamidad—nagiging okasyon ang mga ito para lampasan ang ating mga pagkakaiba, para matuto tayong magdamayan. Para matuto tayong magpakumbaba, umamin ng ating mga pagkukulang, lumublob sa maputik na baha ng korupsiyon ng lipunan na hinayaan nating maghari. Magsisi, makiisa sa pagkukumpuni, sa pagbabayad-puri, sa muling pagbubuo ng wasak nating lipunan, sama-samang maituwid na muli ang bumaluktot na kultura, tumalikod sa kasinungalingan at katiwalian, at matutong manindigan sa tama, matutong maging tapat, humingi ng tawad sa mga panahon na nakiisa tayo sa hindi tama, nakitawa tayo sa mga nagmumura sa Diyos, sa mga pumapatay sa kapwa, sa mga walang pakundangan sa dangal at dignidad ng tao.

Hindi naman po galit ang Diyos. Tapat pa rin siya. Sabi nga ni San Pablo: kahit magtaksil tayo, mananatili pa rin siyang tapat dahil hindi niya maikakaila ang kanyang sarili. Hindi niya tayo matitiis. Ibig lang niya na matauhan tayo, mahimasmagan sa ating kahibangan, magsisi at magbalik-loob sa kanya.

PUBLIC GOOD

Information is a public good that we should all protect. For this reason, what is truly productive is a partnership between citizens and journalists in the service of ethical and civic responsibility...

Communication must be freed from the misguided thinking that corrupts it, from unfair competition, and from the degrading practice of so-called clickbait.

Who stole our Chiz or shame?

Nights are getting longer these days, daylights shorter. The message is unmistakable: the longest season in the world has just begun, unofficially or otherwise, except perhaps the spirit, not withstanding that a Jose Mari Chan's popular tune is increasingly hummed.

People would prefer that darker days, metaphorically, gets shorter or far and few between, given the givens. We have had more than our share of natural and man-made tragedies, better metaphors are now or should be in great demand, or the horizon looks bleak. Metaphors, according to a poet, are tenacious, after all.

It's should be given that most people, if not all, hope that our nation's priorities are taken care off. Of course, by the highest official, leader, if you like, of the land. Never mind the second highest official; she has something else more important in mind. The Constitution is clear on this: both the highest and the second are supposed to give justice to everyone and serve the nation. There is no doubt what either is doing right now, given the givens.

Good news for the Malacanang tenant and the nation: the most famous veep in this neck of the woods: sara Duterte says that it's pointless to ask the man on top to resign.

In fairness, with so much on the President's plate, probably unprecedented in Philippine history, it would be difficult to sort out from the myriad national concerns in their order of priorities, along with the frequent trips abroad of the spare tire.

First things first. But what would that be for Marcos the Younger?

American author Steven Covey of "Seven Habits of Effective People" noted that leaders must be able to differentiate between urgent and important in addressing needs. Too often, however, that is the pitfall of leaders trying to be effective as possible. Politicians are compromised by definition. Meaning: it's almost impossible for them to determine which is which at a given time or circumstance.

Times iike this, pundits and philosophers can come in handy. India's iconic leader Mahatma Gandhi said actions express priorities. The German philosopher Johann Wolfgang Goethe has a clearer paradigm: the most important thing must not be at the mercy of the least important. Covey says most of us spend too much time on what is urgent and spend less time on what is important.

Between now and 2028, ad the new mindset of the vice president, how much time does the President has to wrap things up nearly and nicely?

A better question: is President Bongbong Marcos spending more time on the problems of the victims of earthquakes, typhoons and flood problems and less time on other things which many consider needing his priority attention? Like keeping hi untilmself politically alive 2028. Anything beyond is ambitious, given the stark realities.

For instance, it's now harvest season for many rice farmers in the country. The golden grains promise gold for farmers and their families. But the farmers see more losses than profits from the hard-earned, back-breaking livelihood. Palay prices are low and farmers want the government to improve it to the level of P20 per kilo for them to be happy about the season. Right now, traders are buying at 10 per kilo. Farmers cry shameless.

In the meantime, rice consumers, especially in calamity areas, housewives want the government to keep the price to P20 per kilo. And the government is doing it at a loss. In other words, the government is helpless to make both consumers and farmers happy. Many agricultural workers are losing their means of livelihood due to mechanization, low income from rice farming and rising land prices that tend to drive farmers away from their livelihood. Never has planting palay been more unhappy and lonely nowadays.

If I were BBM

A COUPLE of weeks ago, I met my former students from UP and quite expectedly, our usual trip down Palawe's memory lane and banter over good food turned into our usual take on the current socio-political issues confronting the country.

For the record, no one from the group ever voted, or will ever vote for a Marcos. But considering the fact that we have set our expectations relatively low for BBM, and the bar was set equally low by Duterte, we were one in giving BBM a passing mark at this point in his term.

Nah! We haven't changed colors or jumped ship as some would conveniently do. Frankly, we do not possess even an iota of cult mentality not to acknowledge something good or right, even if it were accomplished by someone we never liked or voted for.

At one point, we all agreed when someone suggested now is the time for BBM to seize the rarest opportunity in Philippine history so he could redeem not only his family's name but also heal a nation scarred by dictatorship, corruption, and impunity.

In true Bob Barker fashion during the final question in the Miss Universe pageant, someone blurted out, "What would you do if you were the Philippine president?"

If I were BBM, I would first recognize that destiny has placed me in an extraordinary position not just as the son of a former president, but as the leader who can redeem the most controversial name in Philippine history. I would remind myself that this presidency is not merely a continuation of power, but a test of conscience.

If I were BBM, I would start by confronting the truth; not revising it. The Martial Law years (1972–1986) were not a "golden era," as my paid revisionists and trolls claim. The government's own Presidential Commission on Good Government has recovered ₱174 billion of the Marcos family's ill-gotten wealth and estimates at least ₱125 billion more remain unrecovered. Thousands of Filipinos suffered under the dictatorship. According to Amnesty International, 70,000 were imprisoned, 34,000 tortured, and 3,240 killed. These are not rumors or propaganda but facts supported by court decisions and government records. Denying these facts is not leadership; it is deception.

If I were BBM, I would face the victims of Martial Law and their survivors and then say the words my family has never said: "I am sorry." This apology, backed by restitution and reform, could begin a long-overdue process of national healing. This simple act of humility would not, in any way, weaken me. Rather, it would elevate me and show the world that the Marcoses are capable not only of leadership, but of moral courage.

If I were BBM, I would order the immediate settlement of the ₱203 billion estate tax that my family owes the Filipino people. Paying that debt would not only uphold the rule of law but also send a message that no one, not even the most powerful, is above it. After all, it is both a moral and legal obligation. This payment could fund thousands of classrooms, hospitals, and agricultural programs. What better way to demonstrate sincerity than by returning what rightfully belongs to the Filipino people?

If I were BBM, I would ensure that justice is not selective. The ongoing allegations of corruption in flood-control projects and government procurement must be investigated without fear or favor. There should be no "sacred cows," no untouchables, not even within my circle. Corruption is not a legacy but a curse that has haunted every administration. As such, I would prove, with full conviction that accountability begins at home.

If I were BBM, I would rally my allies in Congress not to protect my power, but to pass lasting reforms such as strong anti-corruption and anti-dynasty laws, transparent governance systems, and mechanisms to safeguard human rights.

If I were BBM, I would not spend my presidency defending my father's past but building a future worthy of forgiveness. The Philippines does not need another Marcos myth; it needs a Marcos who finally tells the truth.

If I were BBM, I would grab this once-in-a-lifetime chance to turn the Marcos name from a symbol of tyranny into a beacon of redemption. History is waiting, and so are the Filipino people.

Why Gardenia Philippines bread has become a Filipino household essential

MABALACAT CITY — In a country where breakfast is often rushed, “baon” is packed with care, and merienda is a moment of pause, one thing remains constant on the table: bread that feels like home.

At Gardenia’s Pampanga plant, nestled inside the TECO Industrial Park here, that homegrown staple is crafted with precision and purpose.

The newest and most modern facility in the country, Gardenia’s facility operates 24 hours a day, six days a week, producing up to 375,000 loaves and buns daily. Fully automated and untouched by human hands, the plant blends robotics, hygiene, and heart – ensuring every loaf meets world-class standards.

But what makes Gardenia the number one bread brand in the country isn’t just its scale. It’s the experience baked into every slice, delivering on every mark of quality: cooled through spiral towers to lock in texture, fresh at every delivery, and soft to the touch. The aroma—warm and nostalgic—signals comfort even before the first bite.

Its flavor stands alone, “masarap kahit walang palaman,” be it Classic White or Chocolate Chip. And with nutritious options like High-Fiber Wheat Raisin and HealthiGrain Loaf, Gardenia fuels Filipino families with sustansya and “sigla,” making it a staple in every household.

“Bread is more than food – it is a daily ritual,” says Mary Ann Cabrera, Gardenia’s customer relations manager. “Hence, we want every Filipino to enjoy quality bread that’s affordable, accessible, and always fresh.”

From giant silos storing flour and sugar to spiral cooling towers and image-guided packing lines, the Mabalacat plant is a marvel of modern baking. But its true achievement lies in its reach: from Pampanga to Ilocos, Cagayan Valley to Metro Manila, Gardenia ensures that no household is too far for freshness.

And beyond the bread itself, Gardenia’s impact ripples outward. Through its Nutri-Program, it teaches schoolchildren about healthy eating. During calamities, its delivery trucks become lifelines, bringing comfort to communities in need. In every loaf, there’s a story of care. In every bite, a quiet promise: that good bread should be soft, fresh, aromatic, delicious, and nutritious. That it should be more than a product—it should be a presence.

From panaderia dreams to industrial precision, Gardenia has risen with – and for – the Filipino family.

Sacred Heart Medical Center joins PhilHealth's YAKAP network

ANGELES CITY — For many Filipinos, a cancer diagnosis often comes too late. But with Sacred Heart Medical Center (SHMC) now part of PhilHealth's YAKAP (Yaman ng Kalusugan Program), early detection may finally be within reach – without the financial burden.

Starting Oct. 20, SHMC will begin offering free cancer screening services under the YAKAP package, including tests for breast, liver, colon, and lung cancer. The initiative is part of PhilHealth's expanded primary care benefit, designed to catch illnesses early and reduce long-term treatment costs.

"Cancer is largely preventable and treatable when caught early," said Dr. Maria Josefina Tan SHMC's medical director. "This program allows us to reach more patients before the disease progresses."

YAKAP expands the earlier Konsulta (Konsultang Sulit at Tama) package to include more comprehensive diagnostics, streamlined patient navigation, and phased access to subsidized medicines under the GAMOT (Guaranteed and Accessible Medications for Outpatient Treatment) initiative.

At SHMC, patients can now avail themselves of free cancer screening under PhilHealth's YAKAP Program, including tests for breast (2D mammogram and ultrasound), liver (AFP and ultrasound), colon (fecal test and colonoscopy), and lung cancer (low-dose chest CT).

To access these services, patients must register with SHMC at their YAKAP Clinic and undergo a first patient encounter (FPE) for a doctor's order.

For 58-year-old barangay health worker Lorna, the program is a game-changer. "Marami sa amin ang takot magpa-check-up dahil sa gastos," she said. "Ngayon, libre na. Hindi na kami maghihintay ng sintomas bago kumilos."

SHMC's inclusion in the YAKAP network is especially significant for Central Luzon, where access to specialized cancer care remains limited. With its advanced technology—including linear accelerators, breast tomotherapy, and image-guided therapy—the hospital offers a one-stop-shop model that reduces delays and improves outcomes.

Beyond diagnostics, SHMC provides a full-circle care approach: surgery, chemotherapy, radiation, pain and nutrition management, psychological support, and palliative care. Its close referral loop and patient navigation system ensure that patients receive timely, coordinated care.

While full GAMOT medicine benefits are still being phased in outside the National Capital Region, SHMC currently offers 21 out of the 75 listed medicines under the program. Broader access is expected by 2026.

For Dr. Tan the launch is both a milestone and a mission. "We're not just treating patients—we're building a culture of prevention. And that starts with making care accessible."

As PhilHealth continues to expand its YAKAP network nationwide, SHMC stands as a model of how public-private partnerships can deliver preventive, compassionate, and comprehensive care—one patient at a time.

Malaysia Business Council, the proposal calls for the re-engagement of AirAsia or other carriers to operate the route anew.

Addressed to the Office of the President, Department of Transportation, Civil Aeronautics Board, Civil Aviation Authority of the Philippines, and the Department of Trade and Industry, the paper emphasizes the strategic urgency of reinstating the route to fuel regional growth, bolster foreign investment, and enhance ASEAN integration.

GROUND BY COVID

Before the global health crisis, the Clark–Kuala Lumpur route served as a crucial link between Central Luzon and Malaysia, a key ASEAN economic partner. Its suspension, a casualty of travel restrictions, border closures, and airline network consolidation, has yet to be reversed, even as other international flights have resumed.

According to the position paper, this lapse has created a void in trade access, tourism flow, and investment connectivity, particularly affecting business activity in Clark Freeport, New Clark City, and the broader Central Luzon region.

NEED FOR FLIGHT RETURN

The proposal for reinstatement cites six core arguments:

1. Economic and Investment Opportunities: With Malaysia showing growing interest in Central Luzon, a direct flight is critical to facilitate business visits, trade missions, and investment scouting, in line with the Bases Conversion and Development Authority’s ongoing promotion of the Clark Freeport Zone and New Clark City.

2. Employment and MSME Development: Route restoration would generate employment across logistics, hospitality, and tourism, and open new market access for micro, small, and medium enterprises in Pampanga, Tarlac, Bulacan, and nearby provinces.

3. Stronger ASEAN Connectivity: The route aligns with the Brunei–Indonesia–Malaysia–Philippines East ASEAN Growth Area (BIMP-EAGA), supporting trade in manufacturing, agriculture, halal products, and services.

4. Support for Aviation Decentralization: The revival would ease congestion at the Ninoy Aquino International Airport, support the government’s multi-gateway strategy, and make use of Clark International Airport’s underutilized terminal, which has an annual capacity of 8 million passengers.

5. Tourism Boost: Kuala Lumpur’s role as a transit hub for ASEAN, South Asia, and the Middle East makes the route a vital entry point for international travelers to Northern Luzon destinations like Subic, Baguio, and Banaue.

6. Strategic Access for New Clark City: As the government aims to position New Clark City as a global investment hub, direct air connectivity is seen as essential for hosting diplomats, investors, and business delegations.

NATIONAL STRATEGIC IMPERATIVES
Beyond regional benefits, the position paper stresses that restoring the route would enhance the Philippines’ standing within the ASEAN Economic Community, advance national tourism and infrastructure objectives, and solidify ties with Malaysia.

The paper calls for immediate action from multiple agencies:

1. DOTr, CAAP, CAB, the Clark International Airport Corp., and the Luzon International Premier Airport Development Corp., the CRK operator, are urged to initiate airline negotiations and offer regulatory support.

2. DTI, BCDA, the Department of Tourism, and the Philippine Export Zone Authority are encouraged to include the route in investment missions and promotional efforts.

3. The Department of Foreign Affairs and the Philippine Embassy in Malaysia are requested to coordinate with Malaysian counterparts.

4. Local government units and business chambers in Central Luzon are asked to endorse the economic merits of the route.

TIMELY PUSH FOR RECOVERY

“The suspension of the Clark–Kuala Lumpur–Clark flight in early 2020 was a result of extraordinary global circumstances. Today, with economic activity recovering and investor interest rising, the Philippines must seize the opportunity to restore this vital link,” the paper concludes.

The restoration, Romero asserts, will unlock trade, tourism, and employment, reinforcing Clark’s position as a northern gateway and strategic investment hub in the ASEAN region. Press release/Photo: Chef Felix Niño Asuncion, FB

14-Point Agenda: A Roadmap for Inclusive Growth

Charting the direction of development in Pampanga for the next three years, Gov. Nanay launched her 14-Point Agenda comprising: (1) Strengthening the Provincial Health Systems; (2) Food Security and Agricultural Resilience; (3) Youth Empowerment, Education, and Skills Development; (4) Good Governance, Ethical Leadership and Oversight Mechanism to Ensure Transparency, Anti-Corruption and People-Centered Governance; (5) Environmental Regulatory and Monitoring; (6) Alagang Nanay: Comprehensive Provincial Social Welfare and Protection Program; (7) Employment, Livelihood, and Micro-Enterprise Promotion; (8) Digital Governance and ICT Development; (9) Disaster Resilience and Climate Adaptation; (10) Cooperative Development and Financial Inclusion; (11) Barangay Empowerment and Partnership; (12) Expanded Access to Quality and Inclusive Education; (13) Overseas Kapampangan Welfare and Reintegration; and (14) Provincial Housing and Human Settlements Development.

The agenda serve as a guide for all departments and the sangguniang panlalawigan led by Vice Gov. Dennis “Delta” Pineda, in crafting policies that build a stronger, more resilient Pampanga.

Leadership and Collaboration

To strengthen inter-agency collaboration, Gov. Nanay met with national agencies, local officials, and private sector leaders to align development goals. She launched the L.E.A.D. Program (Leadership, Ethics, Accountability, and Development) to promote good governance and hosted the 2025 Pampanga

Business and Investment Forum to encourage investments and job creation. Her leadership earned national recognition when she was elected executive vice president of the League of Provinces of the Philippines.

Transparent and Participatory Governance

To promote inclusive decision-making, she reactivated key councils such as the provincial development council, local school board, and peace and order council, ensuring that 2026 plans and budgets reflect community needs.

‘Alagang Nanay’ in Action

Under the Alagang Nanay Preventive Healthcare Program, over 22,600 beneficiaries received free consultations, medicine, and treatment — a program recognized by PhilHealth as a vital partner in Universal Health Care.

Gov. Nanay also extended ₱70.36 million in medical and financial aid to 3,663 indigent patients, and led preparations for the Pampanga Provincial Hospital-Clark, a Level II facility with a 143-bed capacity, set to become a center for liver and kidney transplant services in Luzon. The Bases Conversion and Development Authority pledged ₱50 million for the hospital’s access road.

Bringing Healthcare to the Coast

Pampanga is set to launch the Clinic on Barge — the Philippines’ first floating clinic — to serve far-flung coastal communities. Initiated by former Governor Delta Pineda and continued by Gov. Nanay, this ₱28-million fully air-conditioned facility will offer laboratory services (X-ray, ultrasound), dental care, minor medical and surgical procedures, pharmacy services, and medical and OB-Gyne consultations.

Public Health, Education, and Senior Welfare

Amid rising dengue cases, Gov. Nanay personally visited hospitals to check on patients and extend financial support. She also continued the ₱100,000 cash incentive program for 95-year-old senior citizens, benefiting 51 elders.

In education, 190,815 students and learners including ALS (alternative learning system) passers, board and senior high school graduates received support. Over 200 trainees benefited from the Technical Education and Skills Development Authority and Foton-led skills training and job placements.

Public Safety and Disaster Preparedness

To boost local response capacity, the province distributed 29 mini dump trucks for waste management, motorcycles to the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency for anti-drug operations, a drop-side truck to the Aeta Mag-indi Cooperative, and mobile phones and generators to 21 coastal barangays for disaster readiness

Child Protection

Following the rescue of over 100 abused children in Mexico, Pampanga, Gov. Nanay and Vice Gov. Delta provided medical care, food, and hygiene kits — reaffirming their commitment to child welfare.

Relief, Recovery, and Resilience

After the July floods affected more than 200 barangays, Gov. Nanay led relief operations reaching 92,000 beneficiaries, and conducted infrastructure inspections to accelerate recovery and improve flood control systems.

For the southern section of the NSCR System, the DOTr is targeting to complete ROW acquisition for nine stations by December 2025, including those in Biñan, Cabuyao, Sta. Rosa, EDSA, Sucat, Muntinlupa, FTI, Blumentritt, and Sta. Mesa.

The agency is also fast-tracking the utility relocation of the NSCR’s southern segment by December 2025, alongside the Banlic Depot, with

Agriculture and Food Security

Gov. Nanay joined President Ferdinand R. Marcos Jr. in inaugurating the P8.2-million Rice Processing Center in Guagua and distributed land titles and ₱10,000 cash aid to 2,970 farmers.

Through the Food Security Program, 1,393 Aeta families in Floridablanca received planting tools and seedlings. The province also distributed 104 cattle to cooperatives and partnered with the Philippine Carabao Center and Pampanga State Agricultural University to boost productivity.

Support for OFWs and Indigenous Communities

In coordination with DSWD and the Office of the President, Gov. Nanay extended aid to 3,000 OFWs and distributed: 60 carabaos and 30 carts, school supplies, two Starlink units to Aeta communities in Porac to improve connectivity.

Supporting National Programs

Under her leadership, Pampanga actively supported the Kadiwa ng Pangulo Program, offering ₱20-per-kilo rice to Kapampangans. The province also implemented the Ayuda para sa Kapos ang Kita Program (AKAP) and Emergency Cash Transfer Programs, helping over 25,000 residents.

Gov. Nanay’s first 100 days in partnership with Vice Gov. Delta and the sangguniang panlalawigan reflect her enduring brand of leadership: one that listens, cares, and acts. With compassion and decisive governance, her administration remains committed to building a healthier, safer, and more prosperous Pampanga for every Kapampangan.

Obviously, PBBM needs all the help that it can get to meet the great crises that beleaguer his office. For one, he needs to answer the overwhelming call for justice in the land which was triggered by the huge and widespread in government uncovered in legislative and public work anomalies. He needs to convince the public that he is serious about bringing an end to this deep-seated malaise that is becoming a global shame.

PBBM has to seriously consider a new anthem that will make people more sensitive to his call for shame, at home and abroad. We have a lot of catching to do to make for our lack of shame. Jailing the guilty isn’t enough. Try something else is not only urgent, it’s important.

There are other issues that he must contend with that are threatening him politically., notwithstanding Sara’s change of heart. The public also demands accountability of the vice president via the impeachment that has yet to proceed, pending the issuance of a final ruling by the Supreme Court which has yet to address its alleged factual error in its first ruling.

The new Ombudsman has also reopened the cold case against Pharmally which implicated no less than former Pesident Duterte in a Senate Blue Ribbon committee investigation headed by former Senator Dick Gordon. Gordon accused the Chinese firm of defrauding the Philippine gov ernment of billions of pesos in dubious medicines and supplies.
